The Connecticut After School Network Presents

Planning Your After School Program's Future

This workshop builds on the notion that our strategic questions guide us down a path of discovery; and what we discover (the data) becomes the material out of which the future is conceived, talked about and constructed

John Prins, Trainer

John is head of Prins Associates of Branford and director of human resources for the Clifford W. Beers Child Guidance Clinic. He has extensive experience in strategic planning and other training and consulting to schools and nonprofit organizations.

Monday, May 12, 2008
9 a.m. – 3:30 p.m.

Blackstone Memorial Library
758 Main Street, Branford, Connecticut

Participants will learn how to frame their planning processes by asking the right questions. Using a mock organization we will proceed through planning stages to gain a deeper understanding of the value of positive imagery in creating the strategy for the organization's desired future.

Teams of two—the director of the after school program, plus a second staff person or board member—are encouraged.

Registration fees for Connecticut After School Network Members: $50/person or $80/two persons from the same organization.
